The Nature Play Space at Stratford Hills connects outdoor play with nature engagement. Located among the community's looping trail system, visitors will be attracted to the native, child-friendly grasses and colorful pollinator habitat spread throughout the space. Parents can gather on nearby benches, while their children challenge themselves to balance on stumps and logs. A stepping stone pathway guides the way toward further exploration, leading to sensory experiences in the gravel digging area and climbing challenges on a towering play structure. Hidden among the action, a quiet garden nook offers children and adults a place to read and rest. With so many ways to play and engage with nature, this space will keep families coming back time and time again.
